While the true origin of "The Nutmeg State" or "Nutmeggers" is unknown, one theory is that it comes from Yankee peddlers selling wooden nutmegs in colonial times to unsuspecting southerners. However, some believe these nutmegs were the real deal, but southerners were unfamiliar with the correct way to consume them.

Welcome to your eastern Connecticut home.

Eastern Connecticut is a jewel of New England, enjoying plentiful water access, beautiful beaches, quaint towns, bustling cities, unforgettable nightlife, fascinating history, and friendly people.

For lovers of the outdoors, it hardly gets better than eastern Connecticut. Many of the region's towns have public and private beaches that encourage visitors to soak up the sun and enjoy water activities throughout the year. Many beaches welcome dogs either year-round or in the off-season. See page 11 for more details. Our local and state parks offer a blend of sightseeing, history, and leisure. Many are located on eastern Connecticut waterways and beaches, while others are built in and around historic properties. Most offer a combination of walking and hiking trails, picnic spots, and rest facilities.

History buffs will find no shortage of activities here. This region's roots stretch back to pre-history, and it was a focal point in the Revolutionary War. The communities of New London and Groton still bear witness to the devastation caused in 1781 when turncoat Benedict Arnold ordered British loyalist troops to burn down New London and attack Fort Griswold in Groton, earning the last British victory of the Revolutionary War.

Eastern Connecticut rose from the ashes, and by the Civil War, was a hub of commercial and scientific development. Naval Submarine Base New London was established in 1916, becoming a center of U.S. defense activity on the east coast. Many wealthy industrialists and people of influence vacationed in eastern Connecticut, enjoying its mild climate and close access to both Boston and New York. Their influence remains today in the form of a large number of properties, museums, and parks that residents and guests enjoy exploring.

Eastern Connecticut is a thriving region. Visit a park near you, savor world-class restaurants and entertainment, and participate in any number of activities that suit your interests and budget. This area truly has it all!

ON THE WATER

Connecticut beaches are sheltered from surf by the eastern end of Long Island, making them safe for all ages. If bigger waves and a stronger surf are more your style, take a quick trip to the Rhode Island shore. Interested in fishing? Fishing is allowed in many parks throughout the region. ANNUAL EVENTS

Eastern Connecticut loves a good celebration. Seasonal events take place throughout the region year-round, bringing communities together to celebrate or commemorate special causes.

The region's primary event season takes place during the summer months, typically Memorial Day through Labor Day. During this time, many towns present street festivals, art festivals, food and wine festivals, auto shows, and much more.

Some communities have weekly firework displays, while others go all out for Fourth of July celebrations.

New London is renowned for Sailfest, an annual three-day-long street festival that brings vendors, food trucks, exhibitors, live music, a 5k, and much more to the city's historic downtown district. The weekend is capped off with a large fireworks display over the Thames River, synchronized to music from local radio stations.

RESTAURANTS

When it comes to exceptional dining experiences, eastern Connecticut has a wide range of restaurants to satisfy every taste bud.

Connecticut cuisine is closely tied to its storied maritime tradition, and there is no shortage of seafood! Seafood lovers can find endless varieties of lobster, oysters, shrimp, mussels, clams, crab, and fish dishes. Most eastern Connecticut towns with water access have seasonal "clam shacks," serving simply-made - but expertly prepared - fresh seafood in a casual atmosphere. Despite their humble appearances, many of these facilities are the most popular seafood spots around. Locals often gladly wait in long lines for these culinary experiences.

Dining out at eastern Connecticut restaurants is an experience of its own. The region offers options appropriate for any taste and budget. Many national fast food staples have a presence in eastern Connecticut, as well as chain restaurants you might be familiar with. For those seeking a more local flavor, the region's chefs prepare sumptuous cuisine at unique, independent restaurants. Eastern CT is fortunate to be home to an array of American, Italian, Greek, Thai, Polish, Chinese, Lebanese, Mexican, and fusion restaurants. Restaurant styles run the gamut between classic deli counters and dazzling steakhouses.

The health-conscious diner will be pleasantly surprised at the variety of offerings in eastern CT. Local restaurants embrace healthy eating habits, and many specialize in body-positive, earth-friendly meals. Plus, many restaurants order from local farms and suppliers, keeping their food healthy and affordable.

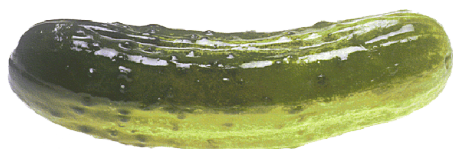

Grinders vs. Subs

Every region has its own name for the classic sandwich. Here in eastern CT, we use both terms. Rumor has it the term "Sub" even originated right in New London and is named for the New London Naval Submarine Base.

Does that pickle bounce?

Connecticut law requires pickles to bounce in order to be sold. This old regulation has its roots in a 1948 incident in which pickle packers were arrested for selling rotten pickles. Connecticut's Food & Drug Commissioner then shared a tip: drop a pickle from a height of 1 foot and if it bounces, it's safe to eat.

NIGHTLIFE

Eastern CT truly shines at night. The options for a night out range from intimate pubs to two of the world's most glamorous resort casinos.

Mohegan Sun and Foxwoods Resort Casino, both easily accessible within eastern CT, are the region's hotspots for nightlife. Each of these properties boasts restaurants, shops, nightclubs, gaming, and multiple performance stages featuring world-class entertainment.

Mystic offers plenty of restaurants and bars that cater to residents and tourists, many of which host live music events throughout the year. Check with them often for lineups.

New London is a center of south eastern CT nightlife. Its many restaurants complement its vibrant bar and live music scene. New London also hosts a number of cultural events in performing arts venues throughout the city.

Norwich, located up the Thames River from New London, offers a blossoming nightlife scene. Residents are drawn to its multicultural restaurants, bars, and microbreweries.

Many eastern Connecticut towns have sections, or villages, that are commonly referred to by locals but might be hard to locate on a map. For example, the village of Mystic is a census-defined community that actually straddles both the Town of Groton and the Town of Stonington. Mystic does not exist as its own independent township, but is what locals generally refer to when they talk about the cluster of neighborhoods and attractions centered around the Mystic River.

For a complete list of towns, villages, and boroughs, check out a list of principal communities on ct.gov.

Military Services

Eastern Connecticut loves its military community. Servicepeople and their families are an integral part of our region. Many who move here temporarily for military service fall in love with the area and end up becoming lifelong residents once their tours of duty are complete.

Populating our military community are service members from the U.S. Navy, Coast Guard, Army, and National Guard. Naval Submarine Base New London, located in Groton, is perhaps the highest-profile of our military institutions, with more than 11,500 active-duty personnel. Subbase New London is one of the primary submarine bases for the entire U.S. Navy and is popularly referred to as the "home of the submarine force."

The U.S. Coast Guard Academy in New London is one of the country's premier service academies. Its student cadets receive an elite education and training that prepares them for service on our shores and waterways. The Coast Guard's nearby station, also in New London, houses a dedicated crew who specialize in search and rescue operations, law enforcement, port and waterway security, and environmental protection efforts.

Other eastern Connecticut residents serve in the Army and National Guard, while more still are employed in industries that serve the military. Support for our men and women in uniform runs deep in eastern Connecticut.

GENERAL DYNAMICS
Electric Boat

Power that exists in balance with nature.

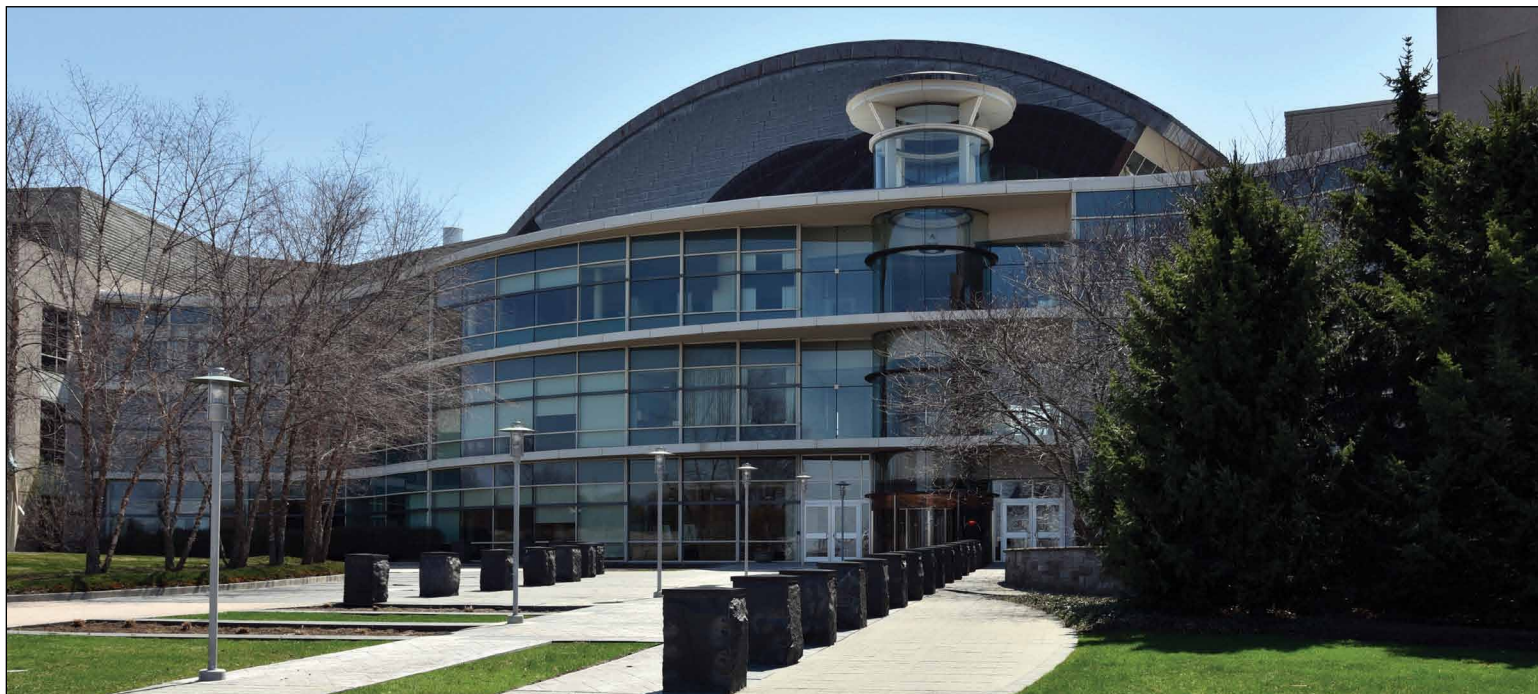

The nuclear energy produced at our Millstone Power Station is not just safe and reliable. It's also emissions-free.

Our nuclear power stations provide a constant source of electricity while generating virtually no greenhouse gas emissions like carbon, nitrogen oxide or sulfur dioxide. Dominion Energy's nuclear fleet also provides one of the most dependable sources of energy available. Technology upgrades to enhance reliability are constantly improving operations—so much so that Dominion Energy's stations typically run more than 90% of the time. And that rocks. Learn more by visiting DominionEnergy.com/Nuclear.

Higher Education

Eastern Connecticut is a well-educated place. The number of educational institutions means you, your children, and your family have a great selection of pathways to explore. Your residence may dictate your access to certain public schools, but the region also offers a variety of alternatives, including magnet, charter, and technical schools. Ask your neighbors or colleagues for recommendations, in addition to doing your own research.

Professionally Managed by The Schochet Companies

UTILITIES

Organize your new utilities. Set up your new cable and internet. Make arrangements for heating and cooling supplies, including oil and propane deliveries, and an electricity provider. If your town doesn't already offer garbage and recycling pick-up, set up a service or get access to your local dump.
